The Proven STOMACH REMEDY for Bad Cases

Amazing evidence of the remarkable speed with which indigestion and stomach pains can be stopped has been revealed by medical experiments and X-ray photographs of actual cases. These prove the ingredients of "Bisurated" Magnesia to be the quickest-acting and most effective known to medical science. Within 5 minutes a teaspoonful of "Bisurated" Magnesia in a little water produces complete relief in cases where numerous other remedies had failed entirely.

Its Action Explained—

Simply take a teaspoonful of the powder in a little water. The moment this soothing draught reaches the tormented stomach it begins to soothe the acid, irritating and inflamed food. The contents of the stomach become as bland and soothing as milk to the sensitive stomach lining. The pain quickly lessens and eventually disappears. By following up the treatment with each meal, your harassed stomach will soon become as tender and strong as steel, and you can eat whatever you like and enjoy your food without fear of wind and pain.

A NOTED ENGLISH DOCTOR SAYS:

"I find that 'Bisurated' Magnesia taken after my meals is the only thing that keeps me free from pain and discomfort, and I take it regularly. I often prescribe it for my patients, and have had very good results."

H. G. — M.A., M.B., B.S., L.R.C.P.

ANOTHER DOCTOR SAYS:

"'Bisurated' Magnesia gives excellent results and is the ideal remedy for stomach pains and acidity. It is particularly recommended for Dyspepsia, Gastritis, Stomach Pains, Flatulence, and even Stomach Ulcers."

FOREIGNERS IN GRAVE PERIL

Warships Rush To Spanish Towns

London, July 24. International concern at the Spanish situation is undiminished. Anxiety has not been relieved with regard to the plight of British, French and German Embassies holidaying in San Sebastian and warships are now hurrying there, and to other Spanish towns to rescue foreign nationals.

British destroyers, the Verity and Veteran, have already arrived at San Sebastian.

Two of Germany's pocket-battle-ships, the Admiral Scheer and the Deutschland, are racing at full speed for Barcelona, where there are 6,000 Germans. Barcelona is one of the cities which is known to be literally in a state of siege and where there have been severe clashes.

Three British destroyers have arrived at Marseilles with 150 British refugees from Barcelona and another is expected shortly with another hundred aboard.

An ironical note was introduced by the rebel leader, General Franco, who to-day awarded the Military Cross to the master of the British steamer Gibel Derba, which rebel planes attempted to bomb yesterday. This act is presumably meant to be an expression of regret.

MARCH CONTINUES

(Hong Kong Daily Press) Special) Paris, July 24. All reports from Spain, both from Government and Rebel sources, indicate that the insurgents are continuing their march on Madrid. Both sides however lay particular stress on having gained the victory at the battle of Somosierra about 50 miles north of Madrid.

General Mola made a proclamation announcing the proclamation of a provisional Government headed by General Miguel Cabanella. Gil Robles, leader of the largest Spanish Right Wing Party, the Catholic Action, who fled to Biarritz at the outbreak of the revolution has now been ordered by the French authorities to leave the neighbourhood of the frontier and remove himself to a town at least one hundred kilometres distant.

NEWS FLASHES OF THE DAY

FASHIONS IN FACES

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 2.

Is it possible that the fashion of smearing women's faces with all sorts of pigments is going out? There have been rumours that the youngest generation is revolting, and now comes the news that among the demands of a group of Paris midnettes on strike was that the management should no longer require them to make up their faces when on duty. If this requirement really exists it would be going one better (or worse) than that of the ladies in an old "Punch" who, upon a change of fashion, stood in their straight skirts indignantly asking of their cook: "What have you done with your crinoline, Mary Jane? Go and put it on at once!" If the Parisian ladies are giving up painting their faces the class-conscious midnettes will not want to be behind the fashion. So we go round and round, and the beauty of one decade is the disgust of the next.

THE SEAMAN'S VISAGE

On another aspect of face culture it may be noted that King Edward has, so to speak, accompanied by a wave of the hand what was only possible to Queen Victoria after prolonged contemplation, conference, and correspondence. The Yeomen of the Guard need no longer grow beards, and in a moment the order of his grandfather, King Edward VII., that they should do so is rescinded. It was different when Queen Victoria had to consider a minor reform in the matter of shaving in the Royal Navy. Prince Leiningen, captain of the Royal yacht, wrote to Childers, First Lord of the Admiralty, that there is more bad language made use of, during the quarter of an hour devoted to shaving than during any part of the day; and no wonder. Jack has had three hours on deck ever since 4 a.m.; perhaps he has been aloft during most of the time, or else he has been on the look-out, steaming head to wind. Down at last he comes at six bells with his face as hard as iron, a bad razor, a small bit of broken looking-glass about the size of half a crown, very often a wet deck to stand on, the ship all the while rolling or pitching heavily. Such are the difficulties under which the British seaman shaves.

The letter, sent to the Queen at Balmoral, did not immediately soften her heart. There had to be circulars addressed to all the flag officers in command and to the other Lords of the Admiralty. Opinion rolled in from the home ports and the Mediterranean, and after about six months' solemn deliberation the Queen approved an order by which shaving was abolished, and seamen were allowed to wear "the entire beard, only it should be kept short and very clean." Two days later that permission was followed by another note.

The Queen wishes to make one additional observation respecting the beards—viz., that on no account should moustaches be allowed without beards. That must be clearly understood.

Thus the opinion of the old officers, from whom the opposition had come, was set aside, and the comfort of Jack Tar secured.

KRA CANAL BUMBOURS

In spite of denials by people on the spot rumour continues to be busy with imaginative stories of the strategic canal which Japan is supposed to be building (or contemplating building) across the Gihim of Kra, in southern Siam, and which would by-pass Singapore. American magazines have even stated that 2,000 coolies are at work on "a ditch which will change the strategy of the Far East." But these Kra canal rumours have been circulating since 1893, when Captain Fraser and Forlong made a report on the subject to the Government of India.

Someone in Singapore has just unearthed the document which describes "an expedition to ascertain the practicability of constructing a maritime canal to connect the Bay of Bengal with the Gulf of Siam." It is recorded that the Bengal engineers found the proposed canal to be "quite impracticable," but they recommended a railway.

A French expedition in 1883 estimated that if the canal were built it would have to be 20 miles long, and that 83,854,222 cubic yards of rock and soil would have to be excavated and dumped—but where they could not think of today the engineering problems

DARDANELLES PARLEY

SNAGS ARISE

ITALY AGAINST ANY AGREEMENT

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 26.

The British Government, at a two-hour meeting yesterday, decided to send fresh instructions to Lord Stanhope, its chief delegate to the Dardanelles Conference at Montreux, because developments there may make serious alterations in potential naval strengths in the Mediterranean.

Lord Stanhope has been in constant communication with London since his arrival at Montreux, and he has consulted departments, such as the Admiralty and the Board of Trade, on technical points arising at the Conference.

His special request for instructions from the Government now relates to Article 6 of the Turkish draft of a new Convention. This article proposes substantially to reduce the tonnage of war vessels which may pass through the straits at one time, or may assemble in the Black Sea.

MARKING TIME

Russia is asking for modifications, urging that the strength of naval forces entering the Black Sea should be greatly restricted, but that Russia should have a free outlet from the Black Sea and not be bottled up inside it.

It is clear, however, that yesterday's meeting of the conference is only a matter of marking time. The difficulties in the way of an agreement are plain. Every time the delegates take up even the most minor point of the Turkish Draft Convention divergences of view are at once recorded, and when the big problems are debated the views are so far asunder that the articles have to be reserved.

Furthermore, the indications from Rome are that, even if Italy decides to attend the second part of the conference after the conclusion of the League of Nations meetings, she would demand a full discussion of all points decided in her absence.

JAPAN'S OBJECTIONS

The Turks express much surprise at the tone of the Italian press, which now seems to imply that, even if Italy eventually comes to Montreux, she will object to the remilitarisation of the demilitarised zone, and will refuse to sign any convention which would provide for such militarisation.

Yesterday morning's private plenary session of the conference adjourned at 1.15 after having decided not to hold any further plenary sessions until the League Council and assembly have been concluded. The drafting and technical committees, however, will continue to sit in Montreux.

Japan ventilated her objections to the League of Nations when her delegate, M. Sato, declared that some other mechanism beside that of the League should be resorted to, as Japan could not be a party to any decisions taken by the League, as she was not a member of that organisation.

ONLY ARTICLE ADOPTED

Article Nine of the Turkish Draft Convention was adopted in principle, it being understood that it should be redrafted to give satisfaction to Japanese reservations. It authorises Turkey, in the event that she believes herself to be threatened with war, to take all the necessary measures.

Article Ten, which deals with steps to be taken to deal with cholera, typhus, yellow fever, etc., was the only article which was adopted without any difficulty.

Regarding the regulations provided in Article Eleven obliging aircraft passing through the Black Sea to the Mediterranean to keep to certain zones, it was generally felt that those were unnecessary, and the Committee recommended that the article should be dropped. It was referred to the Drafting Committee.

It is understood that owing to the unsettled European situation Turkey demands the right to remilitarise the Straits as soon as the Convention is signed. They do not wish to wait for formal ratifications. Japan, however, desires formal ratification before any action is taken.

Feeling "Run Down!"

Just suppose that right now you were talking to a physician.

YOU would have to confess to him that somehow you seem to tire very quickly nowadays; that your energy is gone and that now and then you feel jumpy and irritated.

"My dear man!" he would no doubt say, "look at the symptoms logically. Yours is a clear case of strained nerves. We need not go into how you got that way. The climate, hard and nervous work, late nights, they can all be to blame—but you want to know how to become your old self again. Why not start taking Sanatogen—it's really great stuff! It's made just for people like you, and I know from long experience that it will do you a lot of good. You have asked too much from your nerves, and with Sanatogen you replace the lost energy quickly."

ASSAILANT BADLY BEATEN UP

Sequel To Attempt On King's Life

London, July 16.—King Edward VIII to-day apparently owed his life to the intervention of bystanders and police who disarmed and arrested George Andrew Mahon, crippled London Journalist, after an attack on the King near Hyde Park.

Mahon hurled a missile about the size of a brick, and wrapped up like a package, hitting the King's horse as the king led a parade. He was carrying a large revolver. Eyewitnesses disagreed on whether he attempted to fire the weapon.

Mahon was arraigned in Bow Street on charges of illegal possession of firearms and intent to endanger life, and remanded for eight days.

His attorney, Alfred Kerstner, denied that Mahon attempted or desired to assassinate the King, and asked that officials render a report on the sanity of his client. Officials indicated they would comply.

At his arraignment Mahon incoherently denied intention or desire to injure the King, saying that he merely desired to "protest."

He failed to elucidate. However, it was learned that recently under the name of McMahon he unsuccessfully sued Mrs. Violet Vanderbilt, anti-capital punishment crusader, for 97 pounds 10 shillings, allegedly due for automobile rentals. He was denied permission to appeal and exclaimed:

"That's not justice."

The court forced him to apologize. Meanwhile it was indicated the police anticipated trouble. It was learned that a pair of detectives had watched the house in which Mahon had been residing. He generally departed at 8:45 a. m. However, to-day he departed at 8:45.

Sergeant John Sands said that Mahon carried a snapshot of the King and also a copy of the Daily Tribune on which was inscribed: "Capital, may I love you?"

He said that Mahon was highly nervous and said:

SIR JOHN SIMON BLAMED
"It was all the fault of Sir John Simon. I wrote him last night and telephoned him this morning." Mahon recently edited the "Human Gazette."

The attack occurred while the King was on horseback at the head of a parade of 6,000 guards, en route to Buckingham palace.

The assailant threw his missile, which struck the King's charger. The horse reared but the King quickly controlled him.

A bystander leaped on the man and knocked his revolver to the ground. Other bystanders joined the melee, but police, both foot and mounted quickly closed in and took charge of the assailant.

The attacker was taken first to the Hyde Park police station and then to Scotland Yard headquarters for questioning.

At the time of the incident, thousands of subjects lined Constitution Hill as His Majesty, in a scarlet grenadier's uniform, passed en route to Buckingham Palace after presenting new colours to six regiments of guards at Hyde Park. King Edward maintained complete composure. He continued on his way to the Palace, where he received a salute from guardsmen in the court-yard.

He saluted the dowager, Queen Mary and other members of the Royal Family who were standing in a balcony, after which he entered the Palace while crowds wildly cheered.

The assailant was badly beaten by the crowd. A United Press staff correspondent was in Scotland Yard headquarters when he was brought in, surrounded by a horde of detectives.

COMPLETE CALM
An eye-witness to the attempted assassination, Harry Black, ambulance attendant and member of the first aid corps stationed on the route of the King's procession, said His Majesty maintained complete calm in the face of death.

"I saw a bundle strike the flank of the King's charger," Black said. "The horse reared but the King controlled him and turned in his saddle and looked back. Then he calmly urged his horse forward."

"There was a terrific struggle on the pavement. Mounted policemen galloped from the opposite side of the road and dismounted like lightning. Then I saw the man struggling, gripped by five constables, being partly pushed and partly hoisted overhead the frightened, milling crowds."

Scotland Yard issued a statement saying that four of the five chambers in the revolver were loaded. The gun fell between the King and the guardsmen.

No shots were fired, detectives announced.

Reports that two other men were arrested were quelled by a Scotland Yard announcement that only one man was taken into custody.

The King's brother, the Duke of York, was with His Majesty at the time of the attack.

Queen Mary was informed of the incident following Edward's return to the Palace. She hastened to congratulate him on his escape.

Extras of the afternoon newspapers threw Londoners into pandemonium. The Evening Standard ran a screaming headline: "Attempt on King's Life."

The Standard claimed that the assailant pulled the trigger but the bullet failed to explode.

The paper quoted an Irish Guardsman as saying:

"My attention was attracted to the King who was staring very hard to the left."

"The King's courage was marvellous. Although he was looking at a man with a pistol, not knowing when a bullet was going to be fired, he did not flinch."

Afterwards Edward motored to the Combehill course and played a round of golf. His sole comment as far as was known were the words: "the damn fool."

It was believed that the incident would lead to a general tightening of police precautions. However, it was noteworthy that Edward dislikes constant shadowing by plainclothesmen and often evades them.

MAN WHO DISARMED ASSAILANT IDENTIFIED

(By Clifford B. Day)
London, July 17.—Anthony Gordon Dick, 36-year-old travelling salesman and former navy stoker was officially identified to-day as the man who disarmed George Andrew McMahon as the latter flourished a revolver in an apparent attempt to assassinate King Edward yesterday.

It was understood that Scotland Yard expressed official appreciation to Dick for his heroism, which apparently saved the King's life.

Dick, in his suburban home in Essex, told the United Press he was standing near the Wellington Arch atop Constitution Hill when he noticed a man holding a revolver.

He lunged forward and struck McMahon a backhand blow, knocking the pistol flying.

"I then got him around the neck and held as tight as could be," Dick said.

"He said 'For heaven's sake, don't strangle me,' after which police arrived and took McMahon in custody."

King Edward arose early at his country place at Fort Belvedere this morning and motored to London, where he examined hundreds of messages of congratulation from all over the world.

ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF KING

Accused's Letter To Sir John Simon

London, July 24.

Before George McMahon's second appearance in the Bow Street Police Court had concluded, to-day a letter allegedly written by the prisoner to Sir John Simon was read to the court by defending counsel.

McMahon is charged as a result of the attack on the King during the review of the Guards recently when he was found in possession of a revolver.

The letter to Sir John claimed that the writer was a victim of "organised persecution by your hirelings," which had prevented him obtaining employment.

The letter stated that as previous appeals to the King had been unsuccessful, he now demanded full satisfaction within fourteen hours, otherwise he would exercise his own prerogative and obtain adequate satisfaction.

The letter concluded: "This is no silly boast. I demand justice, irrespective of the consequences."

ROYAL NAVY

AIR DIVISION INCREASED

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 8.
An indication of the increased importance of the Fleet is given by the appointment of a Deputy Director of the Naval Air Division at the Admiralty, with effect from yesterday. At the same time, Captain R. H. Portal, D.S.C., who has been on the staff of the Division since March, 1935, is appointed Assistant Director, another new post. The Naval Air Division was constituted on January 1, 1929, in place of the former Naval Air Section. It then included one captain as director, one other captain, and three commanders. A Wing Commander, R.A.F., was added in 1933, and in 1935 the number of Commanders, R.N., was increased from three to five. With the appointment now of a Deputy Director the staff of the Division will include nine officers, instead of five in 1929-33.
Captain C. M. Graham, the new Deputy Director, recently returned from the New Zealand Station, where he had commanded the cruiser Diomedé. His official connexion with naval aircraft goes back to 1926, when he became executive officer of the carrier
Furious, then commanded by Captain (now Vice-Admiral Sir) Reginald Henderson, the present Third Sea Lord. He served on the staff of the Naval Air Division in 1928-31.

LAUNCH OF THE HAVOCK

With the launch to-day at the yard of Denny and Brothers, Dumbarton, of H.M.S. Havock all eight destroyers of the Hero type, authorized in the 1934 programme, will be in the water. On completion later in the year they will join the 2nd Flotilla, Home Fleet.
Seven earlier ships of the Navy have been named the Havock, including the vessel launched by Messrs. Yarrow at Scotstoun on August 16, 1913, the name of which was changed before completion to Linnet, when the Admiralty adopted an alphabetical scheme of destroyer nomenclature and all the vessels of the 1912-13 programme were renamed as the "L" class.
The name came into the Royal Navy by the capture in 1794 of the Dutch ship Havik (Hawk), of which Havock is a corruption. Later vessels took part in the Russian War of 1855 and in actions of the sections of the second China War from 1860. The Havock, launched at Poplar in 1893, and a sister ship called the Hornet, completed shortly afterwards, were the first British destroyers, and took part in the naval manoeuvres of 1894.
This Havock was of 275 tons, 3,700 horse-power, and 27 knots speed, with one 12-pounder and three 6-pounder guns and two torpedo tubes. The new Havock is of 1,350 tons, 34,000 horse-power, and 35 knots speed, with four 4.7-in.
guns (each firing a 43-lb. projectile), seven smaller guns, and eight torpedo tubes.

TORPEDO SCHOOL COMMAND

Captain D. A. Budgen will assume command to-day of H.M.S.
Defiance, torpedo schoolship, at Devonport. In succession to Captain L. F. Potter, A.D.C., who was appointed two years ago and is now fourth on the list of captains.
Captain Budgen has returned recently from China in command of the cruiser Capetown.
The Defiance is almost the only training establishment which remains in harbour hulks instead of in a shore building. The three vessels which are now known as the Defiance were originally the cruisers Andromeda, launched in 1897, and Inconstant, launched in 1888, and the torpedo depot ship
Vulcan, launched in 1889. Captain Budgen specialized in torpedoes in 1914 and was torpedo lieutenant of the battleships Cornwallis and Royal Oak during the War.

"THE 39 STEPS"

"The 39 Steps" now showing at the King's Theatre, is one British made picture which can hold up its head with the finest thing in film entertainment that ever came out of Hollywood.

The story, written by the Governor-General of Canada, John Buchan, is entirely new and different from the stereotyped plots with which Hollywood has been plastering the film market in the last few years. It deals with the adventures of Robert Donat, who, as a suspected murderer, can get away from police officers easier than a tarpon from the end of a herring fish-line.

The big punch of the picture, and let us tell you that it has to be big to overshadow the rest of the film, comes in the final reel, when Donat solves the mystery of how information about new war machinery was being carried out of England despite the fact that no important state papers were reported as missing. Incidentally, in clearing up the mystery, Donat also clears up the charge of murder placed against him, thus providing for the traditional happy ending.

Included in the cast, besides Robert Donat and Madeleine Carroll, are Lucy Mannheim, Godfrey Tearle, Peggy Ashcroft, John Laurie, and Helen Hays. A musical featuring Phil Spitalny and his famous Girl Orchestra, and a Terrytoon round out an enjoyable programme at the King's.

TIME ALTERED

The management of the Alhambra Theatre advises that owing to the length of the film "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," the afternoon performance commences at 5.00 sharp instead of the usual time.

CAPTAIN BLOOD

More often than not the term "all-star cast" is a misnomer. But such is not the case in the Cosmopolitan production "Captain Blood," which is showing at the Star Theatre to-day.

At least ten of the players who support Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland, youthful and romantic leads, are bona fide stars.

Lionel Atwill, who plays Colonel Bishop was under starring contract to David Belasco for a period of ten years.

Frank McGlynn, a man of fifty years, acting experience, starred three years in John Drinkwater's "Lincoln," an international stage hit.

David Torrence and his wife Maude Leslie were both Shakespearean stars years before beginning film work.

Guy Kibbee is one of the best known of stellar vaudeville players.

Then there are Basil Rathbone, London celebrity; George Hessel "spotted" in Schubert's "Passing Show" for fifteen years; Mary Forbes, star of "Chu Chin Chow," at the age of eighteen; Colin Kenny of the Gayety Theatre; Harry Cording; Henry Stephenson; Reginald Barlow and Robert Barrat.

Equally as well known are Stuart Casey, Hobart Cavanaugh, Holmes Herbert, Forrester Harvey, Ivan Simpson and Leonard Muddle.

NO SHOWS AT THE "QUEEN'S"

House Closes Down

FANS DISAPPOINTED

What was stated to be only a temporary measure, was enforced on Saturday when the Queen's Theatre, one of the oldest and most popular cinema houses in Hong Kong, closed down. Patrons who wished to see "Dangerous" starring Bette Davis, who incidentally won the Academy Award for her performance in this picture, were disappointed when they were confronted with a notice to the effect that the management regretted to announce the closure of the theatre and the temporary suspension of all performances.

Mr. J. E. Noronha, the genial manager of the theatre stated that the first intimation he received of this most unfortunate step was at 1.30 p.m. on Saturday. Under the circumstances he was compelled to cancel all performances. He added, however that he hoped the suspension would be only temporary and within a week the doors would be open to the public again. It is understood that the picture "Dangerous" was well booked ahead and it is therefore particularly unfortunate that this step should have occurred at this moment.

The closing of the theatre has caused the cancellation of a Chinese school prizegiving, which had been arranged to take place there yesterday morning.

ITS HISTORY

The Queen's Theatre was originally opened in 1923 by the International Amusements Co., transferring in 1925, into the hands of the Hong Kong Amusements Co., who held it until 1934, when the house was taken over by Cinemas, Ltd., the present lessees. The Queen's Theatre, some will doubtless remember, was the first picture-house in Hong Kong to show "talkies," when, Al Jolson's "The Singing Fool," was screened in November 1929.

TRIBUNAL FOR FILM

TRADE SUGGESTED

To Consider Evils Of Cinema Redundancy

EXHIBITOR'S WARNING

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 26.

The "boom" in cinemas, resulting in redundancy and the showing of poor films, was condemned by Mr. K. A. Nyman, of London, at the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association Conference at Eastbourne yesterday, and he suggested that the Government be requested to set up a tribunal to consider the redundancy question.

He pointed out that this must involve a complete inquiry by the Government into all the present working conditions of the trade.

The method of appeal to the Government, was not one that commended itself to any section of the trade, and even the public might be sceptical of a suggestion which might lead to a Government-controlled entertainment industry.

With the right spirit from all concerned and the right man in charge he favoured a scheme for a joint trade tribunal, but feared that a Government inquiry into the film trade would have to precede it.

"MAD RUSH"

Many renters were either acquiring theatres or joining in the made rush to acquire interests in growing circuits. The renters, by encouraging redundancy, temporarily placed all their product—good, bad, and indifferent—at high prices, and during the gold rush these new circuits, in order to exist in redundancy situations, could do so only by depriving existing cinemas of worth-while product.

In each theatre the effect of redundancy was doubly evil, for as the number of good films available dwindled, the amount of "tripe" increased by the same proportion.

The public would have to see bad films which would in turn disappoint and disorganize them and probably make them turn elsewhere for amusement.

SUPERB FILM AT ALHAMBRA

"MR. DEEDS GOES TO TOWN"

Crowded houses is the order of the day at the Alhambra, Kowloon, where Columbia's latest production, "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town," starring Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur, is the drawing card. If you have not already done so be sure and see this film which is one of the best that has come our way for some time.

Cooper's versatility as a screen actor has been proven beyond doubt with his masterly performances in "Desire" with Marlene Dietrich, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer", "If I Had a Million" and as the young architect in love with Ann Harding in "Peter Ibbetson", to name but a few of his splendid films.

Miss Arthur, a one-time small part played with a captivating husky voice, came into the limelight with her performance opposite Chester Morris in "Public Hero No. 1" and since then she has been teamed with Herbert Marshall in "If You Could Only Cook" which, incidentally, is showing at the Alhambra very soon, and with that celebrated star, William Powell in "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford" which she recently completed.

"Mr. Deeds Goes To Town" is an interesting and powerful picture combining satire with hilarity. But it is definitely refreshing. The improbable story takes Longfellow Deeds (Gary Cooper), a whimsical small town boy, to New York to look after his fortune of $20,000,000 which he has inherited. There he is ridiculed by the newspapers, hounded by money-grabbers and finally attempts to give his money to the poor. He is tried for insanity, but the political feeling is handled so deftly as to offend no one.

Cooper is excellent and his portrayal of a simple, basically intelligent, often pathetic character is done with great sympathy and bound to affect you.

Miss Arthur is equally splendid as the reporter who tricks Mr. Deeds into a story, then falls in love with him.

Lionel Stander, who was in "The Scoundrel" and "The Music Goes Round" stands out in a comedy role while Douglas Dumbrille, who has appeared with Cooper in other productions, is good as the crooked lawyer.

To reiterate that the film provides superb entertainment is superfluous suffice it to say just this, see it by all means—"Redincom".

KING GEORGE MEMORIAL

Total Of £145,032

London, July 8.

The Lord Mayor's Fund for the National Memorial to King George mounted last night to £145,032. The Chairman of the Baitie sent a cheque for £11,121 as the first instalment of the collection being made at that Exchange.

A thousand guineas from the National Union of Teachers is earmarked to the extent of £1,000 for playing fields. Two contributors yesterday asked that their money should be wholly devoted to the statue, the reason given being that the young people of to-day had too much done for them. One wrote:—"Young people have everything nowadays and the older people nothing. I find youth selfish and spoilt." The second contributor said:—"I think present-day youth have too much done for them and are none the better for it."

"Most interesting," said the sweet young thing to the motor car salesman, "and now show me the depreciation please; I hear it is heavy in these cars." "As a matter of fact, madam," replied the opportunist, "we found the source of worry, and had it removed."

CATHEDRAL SERMON

The Ministry Of Women

The following sermon was delivered by the Rev H. W. Baines at the Cathedral yesterday morning:
"Jesus saith unto her Mary. She turned herself and saith unto Him Rabboni which is to say Master."

To Mary was given the honour of being the first witness of the risen Christ. Yet she is the last to have been admitted by our Church to a place of honour among the saints whose feast we observe. It was not till the Calendar was being revised in 1923 in preparation for the deposited Prayer Book of 1927 that Mary Magdalene's name found a place among the Red Letter Saints' Days. I don't know why this singular discrimination should have been made and why for so many years the Mother of our Lord should have been the only woman to have been honoured by our Church for her relation to Him. Not including St. Michael there are sixteen men whose sanctity we honour and now that Mary Magdalene has been included there are but two women, a proportion which hardly agrees with the numbers in the ranks of those who have served Christ in the years between.

CHURCH BUILDER'S TASK

It has been left to church builders and to those who were looking for a dedication vividly descriptive of the Church's service of men to bring back the name of Mary Magdalene to the prominence that it surely deserves. Whose name could better keep a congregation in mind alike of the devotion which it must show to God by the beauty of impassioned dedication and the service that it must render to men? She had been known as Mary of the Seven Devils: a woman distraught, the plaything of uncounted diabolical agencies. But at some golden moment which the evangelists have not preserved for us Mary had met the humble carpenter of Nazareth and when they looked on each other, her soul escaped from its legion contestants and rose from its charnel-house to greet the Lord of its life. We cannot tell what form Mary's possession took but we can know from the steadfastness of the service which she gave to Christ after her conversion that she earned the title "the queen of penitents." Mary rose out of her old life which was really death to follow her Lord to that death which was the perfect fulfilment of life, the perfect sacrifice of love. She became the companion of Christ and the men who were with him and her womanhood was turned into a healing power so that the service which she gave brought comfort and solace to her Lord and was remembered as a thing of beauty and fragrance by his biographers. Mary Magdalene was a queen of penitents and a servant of all but it is at the resurrection of Jesus that she comes into her own.

SEE BEYOND EVERYTHING

In the exquisite story of the Easter Garden, so much vivid detail of character is packed into a tiny compass. We see her stunned by the burden of her grief, automatically almost carrying out the last service that she could give by bringing spices. In her blind loyalty she braved the soldiers and the danger of public odium and when she found the stone rolled away remained so rooted in normality that she continued to look for His Body where it had lain. And then the superb figure striding through the lilies in the dawn which she mistook for the gardener until all His magnificence is made adorable for her by His utterance of her name and she replies not only with her lips but with her life, "Rabboni" which is to say Master. From that day on she was His witness. No one knows what happened to her for certain but you all know the legend of her being put to sea in an open boat and being cast ashore on the coast of France and there bearing witness to her risen Master until she was called upon to testify with her life.

Companies of Christians who have chosen Mary Magdalene for their patron have surely done themselves great honour.

AS THE CHIEF

I have spoken so far of what is definitely known of Mary in the Gospels. She has commonly until more recent years been identified with Mary the sister of Lazarus and with the woman that was a sinner who poured the ointment over his head and feet at Bethany during Holy Week. Neither of these identifications can be regarded as probable, indeed it is most likely that three different women are described. But I like to think of Mary Magdalene as the chief because the humblest representative of all that band of women who when He was in Galilee ministered unto Him and that we should recognise and honour the service which they paid to our Lord in the honour that we give to Mary. In Mary let us be proud to remember the power of Jesus' perfect love which won back from a living death a woman deeply sunk in depravity and the quality of His understanding which was much deeper for erring women than that of their usual timid and exacting male judges; and in Mary let us delight in the wild beauty of the extravagant gift of the vase of ointment very costly.

Even if we hesitate to admit women to the ordained ministry of the Church we cannot possibly deny—indeed our hesitation may be for that reason—that they have shown and always will show a ministry that is inalienably theirs. To anybody who has watched women tending the sick and dying or who has in youth known the understanding which older women will so generously share with younger men or who have seen the precious casket suddenly broken and offered or gradually worn and faded in the service of love will know how great a cause for thanksgiving we and specially mere males have in this ministry.

THE CRITICISMS

Occasionally gibes in not very good taste have been made at the expense of congregations alleged to be made up largely of pious women and sympathy has been directed at clergy on that account. "It is not plain whether the criticism is laid against the women for being pious or the Church for letting them in. The facts are of course in the first place that normally in Hong Kong and increasingly in England the proportion of actual congregations attending public worship is more male and less female and that even if it were true that the clergyman's job consisted in looking after, as it is called, a few religious women, he would be to be envied in as much as, at least so far as my experience goes, I am in search of wit and charm and sympathy and understanding and real forbearing kindness I look first among the women who minister to Christ.

The glory of any Church and I hope of this Church is to be found not least on its ministering women. And I mean by that women who minister in the same spirit and manner as Mary Magdalene. The glory of her penitence, who saw with a woman's intuition more clearly and more deeply than men into the heart of the character of our Lord is one that we must covet. And I covet for this Church a company of women who whether at home or outside are carrying on Mary's tradition of service. I know how much has already been done through the Benevolent Society, the Society for the Protection of Children, St. John's Ambulance and many other schools and institutions for young people and those who are afflicted. The Cathedral Women's Guild could have no better patron for the ministry of reconciliation and service to which it is called in Hong Kong than Mary Magdalene. Let us all covet Mary's courage. Remember that conditions in those days were not as favourable to the display of a woman's independence as they are now. Remember that Mary had a past which ill disposed persons would not easily let her forget and then mark the courage which was born to her devotion as she testified that He is risen indeed.

BULKELEY STREET AFFAIR

Assailant III

So Shing, 56, described as a master barber, of No. 77, Bulkeley Street, Hung Hom, arrested in connection with the sensational stabbing affair some weeks ago in Hung Hom district, when four persons were injured, including a three-year-old girl, was further remanded at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday when his case was called before Mr. E. Himsforth.

Crown Sergeant Banks in applying for a remand, said that

PERMIT LACKING

Charged with carrying on a public entertainment without a permit from the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, or the Inspector General of the Police, Lam Hing, 40 years of age, said to be an ex-seaman of the Water Police, admitted guilt and was fined $30 or one month's imprisonment by Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday.

Inspector Portallion (prosecuting) stated that he visited Nga Tsin Wai Village, Kowloon City at about 10.30 p.m. on July 23 and found a performance going on in an open yard of a disused "soy" factory. There were about 150 people present and two actors one a female, were performing on a temporarily erected stage.

The price of admission was 10 and five cents. Actually $7.40 was collected. Defendant admitted that he was in charge and frankly stated that he did not have permission either from the S.C.A. or the I.G.P.

Inspector Portallion: I understand defendant is an ex-seaman of the Water Police, so therefore he should know the regulations.

When application was made, added the prosecuting officer, police were placed on duty to prevent gambling or petty thieves from operating.

In sentencing defendant as stated above, the Magistrate ordered that the $7.40 in admission money, be returned.

POSSESSION OF ARMS

ANOTHER REMAND ORDERED

Mr. Kim-shing Lo, instructed by Mr. J. M. Hall, appeared for Wong, while Mr. A. E. Arculli acted for Cheung.

Det. Insp. A. H. Elston applied for another week's formal remand as enquiries were not completed. The Inspector General's wishes, he said, were not yet known regarding commitment of the case or otherwise.

Mr. Lo made application for bail which was not opposed by the prosecution.

Both accused were remanded for a week on bail of $500 each.

DRUGS AND TOBACCO

WOMAN CONVICTED

R. O. Stevens stated that the drugs and tobacco were seized during a raid.

Mr. C. A. Sutherland Russ, for the defendant, pleaded for leniency and said that the defendant had 4 children, the oldest was 10 years and the youngest was 2. She had been perfectly honest with the Police and as she was obviously not a ringleader and the amount seized being so small, Mr. Russ asked that the minimum sentence be imposed.

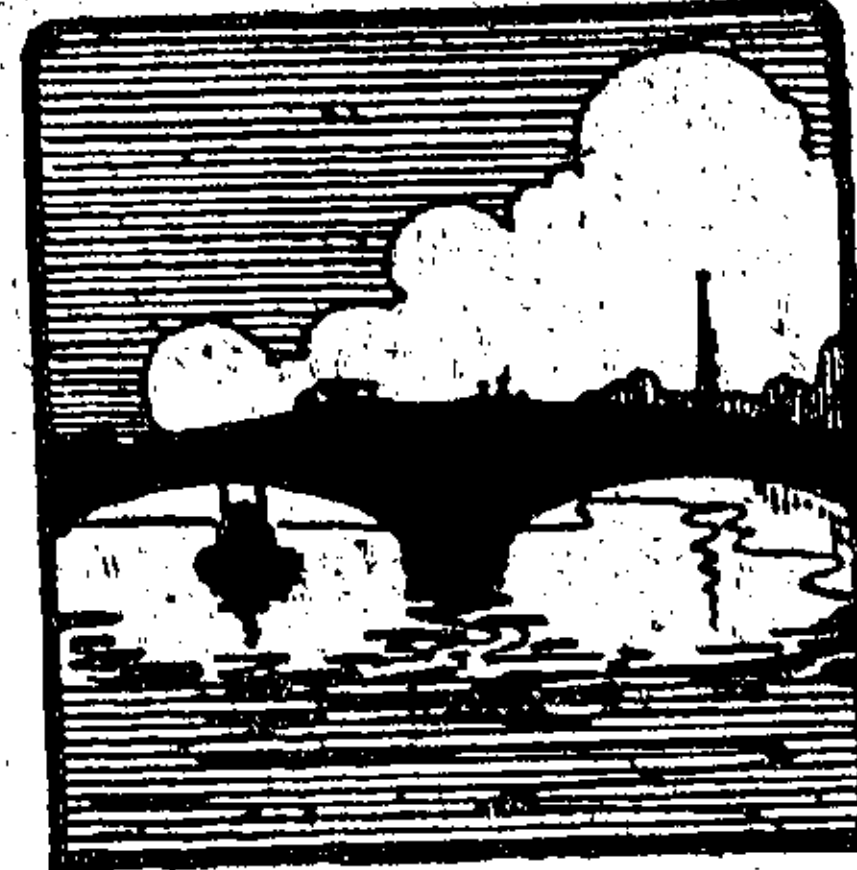

Mr. Burgess replied that in view of the seriousness of the heroin traffic in Hong Kong, he could not reduce the sentence on that charge.

Defendant was fined (a) $50 or one month, (b) $10 or 2 weeks and (c) $50 or one month, consecutively.

accused was unable to attend court as he lay ill in Victoria Jail hospital.

The victims of the alleged attack were: Kwok Hung, principle tenant of No. 77, Bulkeley Street; Li Fuk, his wife, 10-Kia, mother of Kwok; and Kwok Chi Tong, 3-year-old daughter of Kwok and Li.

In finding accused $10 or two weeks' imprisonment, the Magistrate said: I regard your offence as more serious than ordinary larceny, as you had access to the house and you have violated the trust placed in you.

Detective Sergeant McPherson said that accused for the past twenty days had been employed as a houseboy at Devon Road. At about 8.30 p.m. on July 24 defendant handed to the coolie a parcel and asked the latter to carry it for him to a compradore shop in Kowloon. Defendant accompanied the coolie in a bus. When they alighted a detective stopped them and asked what was in the parcel. Defendant ran away and the coolie explained the exact circumstances. He was advised to return to the house, later that evening defendant returned and the police were commiserated with. He admitted stealing the champagne from the kitchen.

HANDBILLS' MISCHIEF

DISTRIBUTION MUST BE SANCTIONED

The "Gazette" contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend further the Summary Offences Ordinance, 1932.

It is explained that Section 3 (17) of Ordinance No. 40 of 1932 provides that every person shall be liable to a fine not exceeding $250 who, without lawful authority or excuse, in any public place posts up or exhibits, or causes to be posted up or exhibited, any notice or proclamation in the Chinese language without the permission of the Secretary for Chinese Affairs or a District Officer. The paragraph is not to apply to Government notices.

The paragraph in question was taken from paragraph (13D) of section 2 (b) of Ordinance No. 22 of 1930, which was repealed by section 32 of the 1932 Ordinance.

A magisterial decision in 1931, under the 1930 Ordinance, held that the distribution of a handbill in the Chinese language was "exhibiting a notice." Since then it has been the practice to provide each distributor of handbills with a chopped copy containing the approval which he could show to any police officer.

A more recent magisterial decision under the 1932 Ordinance has held that the distribution of handbills was not covered by the paragraph in question.

The object of this amending Ordinance is to bring the distribution of handbills again within the mischief against which the paragraph is aimed.

PRISONERS' INFLUENCE IN GAOL

AMENDMENT IN LAW SOUGHT

Changes in prison rules are notified in the current issue of the "Hongkong Government Gazette." New rules made include the following:

"Whenever in the opinion of the Superintendent it is desirable, either in the interests of a prisoner or in the interests of prison discipline, that a prisoner should perform his labour in a cell, the Superintendent may require him to do so; and in such case he shall perform such labour as can be suitably performed in cell."

"A prisoner who is in separate confinement otherwise than under rule 279 and a prisoner who is at labour in a cell under rule 252 shall receive the diet prescribed for men and women without hard labour."

In the case of male prisoners it is made an offence to exercise or attempt to exercise a pernicious influence over other prisoners, or to undermine or attempt to undermine good order and discipline in the prison. To the punishment for these and certain other offences, there is added a provision for separate confinement for any term not exceeding three months.

CIVIL SERVANTS MAY RETIRE

Before They Reach 50

FOR ECONOMY SAKE

Because of the fall in the sterling value of the Hong Kong dollar, and for the sake of economy, the Government proposes to permit voluntary retirement of certain officers before the age of fifty, on condition that they do so within the next two years.

The proposed change is provided for in an amendment of the Pensions Ordinance, the draft of which appears in the current issue of the "Government Gazette."

It is explained that Paragraph (b) of section 8 of the Pensions Ordinance (No. 21 of 1932 as amended by No. 29 of 1935 and No. 3 of 1936) permits voluntary retirement on pension after an officer has attained the age of fifty years if the officer gets the consent of the Governor to his retirement. Otherwise (except in the cases of women and of certain Indian subordinate officers in the Prison department) the normal age for voluntary retirement is fifty-five.

The amending Bill, when enacted, will give the Governor, with the approval of the Secretary of State, power to consent to voluntary retirement before the age of fifty is attained in the case of officers who so retire, not later than June 4, 1938.

It is considered that economies can be effected in cases where retirement results in a reduction of staff or in filling vacancies with less highly paid officers, and it is the contemplation of such cases and the necessity to reduce the Budget deficit consequent on the fall in the sterling exchange value of the local dollar which prompt the proposed amendment in the Pension law.

THE SCRAPPING COMPLEX

Making A Virtue Of What Is Not A Necessity

BY SIR HERBERT RUSSELL

Mr. Winston Churchill has no equal in the present House of Commons in his capacity for making debating points. Whether his arguments are right or not, he has the art of raising doubt in the minds of those who disagree with him as to whether he really is wrong. He is posing as a regular crusader in the cause of the five old cruisers which the Government has decided must be scrapped this year in deference to a rigid rectitude in treaty observance. I think Mr. Churchill is perfectly right, not because the loss of these five cruisers—two of which had already been prepared for the disposal list—would be a matter of very serious moment to the Navy, but because the plea on which they are to be sacrificed is too much in the nature of self-righteousness and too little in the nature of common sense.

We have done rather too much of this sort of thing in our modern history. The other nations, of course, like it, but they do not forget to ridicule it, too. I am not advocating that this country should dishonour her signature or break her pledged word, or in any other way join the current cult of treaty violation. Nor is Mr. Churchill. His strongest point is that we can keep these five cruisers without any default in our obligations to the other signatory Powers to the London Naval Treaty of 1930. There is a proviso in that treaty, which in the jargon of the day is called the "escalator clause," that specifically provides for such a situation as now exists.

OUR "IRREDUCIBLE MINIMUM"

But our right honourable statesmen apparently must blacken themselves all over to play Othello. It is not enough that six years ago, in perfectly good faith at the time, we signed a naval treaty which has worked lamentably to our disadvantage; we must go on making the very most of that disadvantage to the bitter end. The 1930 Naval Conference was ostensibly a step towards disarmament. We dropped our "irreducible minimum" of 70 cruisers to 50 cruisers and proposed a "battleship holiday"—which was accepted—until 1937.

The Americans were suspicious of our (to them) incredible altruism, and got away with an increase of 150,000 cruiser-tonnage. At any rate, in the spring of 1930 we banked upon the world "running straight." In the spring of 1936 we are waiting to spend $300,000,000 as rapidly as our industrial resources will permit to try and regain the security and the prestige we have lost because the world has run crooked.

CONFIDING OPTIMISM

But the Admiralty of the day would not go all the way with the Socialist Cabinet in their confiding optimism. They hoped the world would run straight, in compliance with the admonitions of Mr. Alexander and the late Mr. Arthur Henderson (who toured Europe together to exhort disarmament), but they insisted upon the possibility that it might take the wrong turning. When the French and Italian delegates conceded that the London Treaty was admirable, but declined to sign it, nevertheless, the Admiralty pressed and carried their demand for the inclusion of a clause which would enable this country to take action at any time during the term of the treaty should it appear that this [was working] altogether too much to our disadvantage.

The gist of this clause is that we may go as far beyond the categorical limitations we accepted as may seem necessary to the needs of naval defence, on giving notice to the other signatory Powers, who would then be free to do likewise. Had the British Government simply informed the United States and Japan that it was retaining the "Hawkins" class instead of scrapping them, as provided in the 1930 treaty, and said nothing else in their place, there would have been no violation of any kind whatsoever.

JAPAN AND AMERICA

Japan might have found the way easier for retaining any treaty surplus of cruisers if she wants to do so, but, as she has cut adrift from all "entanglements" when these determine at the end of this year, there is nothing on earth to prevent her from coolly pleading by clause 2 of the Bill gives the effect of sections 2 and 3 of the Nigerian Ordinance No. 11 of 1932, legislation on the lines of which making provision for such voluntary retirements within a period not exceeding two years was authorised by the Secretary of State's telegram of June 4, 1936.

the "escalator clause" herself very shortly before December 31, 1936, and so "regularizing" her position—after we have done our scrapping. As to what the United States might say or do—why on earth trouble about this, since there is no naval rivalry whatever between the two countries, and in any case we do not look to America for any co-operation in the situation which now calls for an urgent expenditure of $300,000,000.

This is Mr. Churchill's postulation, and, on the grounds of our own national interest, it is a sound one. Unfortunately, the present collective complex of our ministerial mentality tends to more concern for what other countries think than what our own country demands. So we are not "invoking" the "escalator clause" to justify the retention of the "Hawkins" class, but breaking up five cruisers—one, of which, the Calypso, is now actually undergoing a refit—which would be of very real value in the event of war.

The London Treaty was calculated to give us 50 cruisers at the end of 1936. We now realize this is not nearly enough, so we are going to build up to a total of 70 cruisers. Having decided on this point, we proceed to reduce the prospective 50 cruisers to 46 for a start. This moral process of "holding our heads high" seems to come very near to what is popularly known as "star gazing."

ORGY OF SCRAPPING

I am not aware of any parallel to this case. The orgy of scrapping which followed upon the end of the Great War, and which it has since been realized was preposterously overdone, at least had the justification that we really believed, we had fought a war to end war. In any case, at that period we had vastly more ships of all types than we wanted. Now we are desperately short of ships of all types. In fact, in the destroyer category, the Admiralty have persuaded the Government to "make representations" to the United States and Japan to the effect that we desire to retain 40,000 tons out of about 76,000 tons earmarked for disposal by the end of the year. The word "negotiations" has been used in connection with these representations, from which it may be assumed that there is no "invoking" of the "escalator clause"—no question of a simple, courteous intimation that, owing to the "degeneration" of the international situation, we mean to retain these three flotillas.

The late Prof. Spencer Wilkinson, who will long be remembered as a very able writer upon naval problems, wrote a letter to the "Times" some years ago in the course of which he asked a very simple question. He said that "it would relieve the minds of many Englishmen if you would explain how it can be right for a British Government to 'discuss' with a foreign Power the strength of the British Navy?" This was about nine years ago and the question is surely very much more pertinent to-day than it was then. Were the Admiralty free from any international obligations, would they be withdrawing these five cruisers for "breaking up" in the state of affairs which now exists?

AN URGENT PROBLEM

Mr. Churchill, who has had a very fair share of Admiralty experience during the course of his variegated career, seems pretty sure of the answer. He declines to acquiesce in the sublimation that we are sacrificing these five ships not because we want to, but because our commitments oblige us to do so. In the simple question of fact he is right. Common sense would suggest keeping these vessels, at any rate until our programme of expansion gets well going. Nobody pretends that they

AIRSHIP POLICY

A correspondent reported the other day that a number of members of Parliament are making a close study of the lighter-than-air problem with official reference to the performance of the German airship Hindenburg. We must take this to mean reviving belief in the possibility of an airship policy for Britain. Faith in the airship has never been pronounced in this country. The man in the street has never really liked the look of "the great gasbags," and the excellent work done was due almost entirely to the enthusiasm of specialists. For that reason the final surrender of British airship enterprise following the disaster to R 101—irrational in so far as it was the result of the calamity of Beaufort—was accepted throughout the country without complaint. It was, as it happened, a season of national economy, and confirmed by necessity. But how, a step suggested by doubt was now that things are easier, is the new movement to be regarded? There is much to be said on both sides. The Graf Zeppelin and the Hindenburg are at present using the air with the ease and punctuality of the average mail train. They have proved that the airship thrives like more ordinary structures, on a good pedigree, and there is no doubt at all that the British Empire could make great use of similar craft. The mooring mast at Karachi stands invitingly and there is in theory no end to the list of Imperial services well-found airships could perform in peacetime.

But peace, actual and in promise over a term of years, would seem to be the final test. Indeed it is no cynicism but a practical fact that if airships had strong warlike potentialities they would be developed with the utmost resourcefulness by all the Great Powers. The development of the airship in Germany is a special case. It is partly the late Count Zeppelin's immortality and partly the result of the desire of a resurgent people for unique self-expression. So it happens that Germany has a fund of constructional and operative experience which other countries would find it difficult and expensive to overtake. It is in the highest degree improbable that the British Government could be induced in present political conditions and in view of the new defence programme to deflect money and effort in the direction of airships. The obvious British policy is concentration on the work in hand—the vital task of air rearmament in which, we trust, the great possibilities of the flying boat will be fully exploited. When that is done it is devoutly to be hoped that the international situation will be so far tranquillised that the airship question may once more be considered in friendly co-operation with the German pioneers.

MARATHON RACE TROPHY

Ancient Helmet Presented

GREAT HISTORICAL VALUE

(Hong Kong Daily Press) Special

Berlin, July 26.

Among the trophies that the winner of the marathon race at the Olympic Games will take home with him is one of a peculiarly appropriate character and of great historic value. It consists of an ancient helmet found during the excavations in the neighbourhood of Olympia and is believed to date from before the 6th Century before Christ.

Despite its remote age, the helmet is in a good state of preservation and is Greco-Corinthian in style, and according to the expert opinion of Dr. Wrede of the German Archaeological Institute of Athens, is of high intrinsic value.

This rare gift has been made by director Aravantinos of the Athens newspaper "Vradin." Inside the helmet will be a silver plate with a dedication by "Vradin" to the winner of the marathon race.

The helmet has already arrived in Berlin and will be handed over to the Olympic organization committee for safekeeping.

If Gossip We Must

(BY "ONLOOKER")

The great international event of the week was undoubtedly the "House Warming" party given by Mr. Aw Boon Haw and his brother at their beautiful new house at Tai Hang.

An immense number of the community turned up. Some people estimated the numbers as being close on two thousand; and certainly everybody one knew or had ever heard of seemed to be there.

The organization was marvellous. Members of the St. John Ambulance Association were there to help look after the guests; and everybody was made to feel heartily welcomed from the moment they came in sight of the gaily beflagged house until the moment when it was time to come away. Although it is doubtless a very great compliment to us Europeans it always strikes me as being such a pity when our Chinese friends build their houses in Western style when they have such beautiful architecture of their own which can be adapted so well to modern building. So it was very pleasing to see the Haw Par Mansion standing proudly up on the hill in full Chinese regalia. A beautiful green tiled roof with graceful curved corners surmounted the gay imperial yellow and pinkish walls. After a few months of seasoning the mellow effect of the colour scheme should be infinitely pleasant to the eye of the beholder.

When we arrived at the entrance our attention was held by the exquisite screens on either side of the doorway. What a lovely idea to have things of real beauty without so that a visitor can refresh himself by looking at them while waiting to be admitted.

Moon gates, those most charming of all Chinese decorative schemes were to be seen in the Hall, leading out to the garden in front, and to the attractive courtyard at the back.

On the way upstairs we noticed more beautiful screens and other Chinese treasures. The bedrooms were almost entirely Western in their decoration, and of course extremely luxurious. The green bathroom—particularly being everything that modern Hollywood-minded youth could possibly dream of!

When we gathered on the cool upstairs terrace to have tea we began to look around at our fellow guests. Lady Caldecott in a charming printed dress with a large hat was obviously very appreciative of all she saw. Lady MacGregor and Mrs. Hayden were together with their husbands. The former wearing blue and white with great success, and the latter in the most attractive green and mauve printed chiffon.

Mrs. Anderson was striking in tailored white with touches of red, and I caught a glimpse of Mrs. Phillips in the distance in an original dress, with the most intriguing sleeves.

There were far too many people there for the gossip monger to retain much idea of what they all wore. But they all looked very nice, and were obviously enjoying the pleasant party atmosphere. The band of The Royal Ulster Rifles played cheerful tunes all the time which considerably added to the occasion, and as well as tea there was every imaginable drink to quaff including masses of delicious champagne for those who really wanted to celebrate.

Later in the evening we were lucky enough to arrive in the hall just at the time that one of the small daughters of the house was presenting a bouquet to Lady Caldecott. Several ladies of the family were present including of course Mrs. Aw Boon Haw who was carrying on an animated conversation with His Excellency, Sir Andrew Caldecott in Malay. She was wearing a lovely shade of blue.

Altogether the Haw Par Mansion "house-warming" will long be remembered as a most delightful event, and we wish our kind hosts were going to stay in Hong Kong longer. Sad to say we hear they will return to the Straits after only a few weeks stay on this occasion.

OLYMPIC TORCH GOES ON

Bulgarian Capital Passed

(Hong Kong Daily Press) Special

Sofia, July 26.

The Olympic fire borne by torch bearers reached here on Saturday night where, as elsewhere, an immense crowd was waiting to witness the ceremony of its reception and the further progress towards its destination in Berlin.

Late on Saturday evening the torch bearer appeared on the vast square in front of Alexander Nevsky Cathedral, facing the Premier's palace and the various ministries.

An altar had been erected outside the Cathedral and on the altar was a bowl in which the Olympic fire was to be kindled. The Olympic runner handed the torch to the Mayor of Sofia, Ivanoff, who thereupon kindled the fire on the altar.

After a short church service the next runner lit his torch at the sacred fire on the altar and started in the direction of the Yugoslav frontier.

CHINESE VIEW OF GERMANY

Dr. Tang's Impressions

(Hong Kong Daily Press) Special

New York, July 24.

H. E. Dr. Tang Leang Li, envoy extraordinary of China to Europe, who recently arrived in New York, after having spent some months in England, and Germany on a mission that created much talk in the press, spoke about the deep impressions he had gained in Germany. The most obvious thing he noted in contrast to his last visit in 1930, was that every one seemed to speak of solutions instead of difficulties. He spoke with greatest admiration of Germany's endeavour to overcome the raw-material shortage. The greatest moment of his visit had been of course his reception by the Fuehrer, who struck him as being a true man of the people in the highest sense of the word. He left Germany with the firm conviction that a closer relationship between China and Germany would be of the greatest value for both countries.

HARROWING STORIES TOLD BY REFUGEES

Youths Cause Reign Of Terror In Malaga

FOREIGNERS SAVED BY BRITISH DESTROYER

Madrid Still In Hands Of Loyalists

Latest messages from Spain tell of harrowing conditions in Malaga where foreign refugees were rescued after a week of terror during which they were imprisoned in their hotels. They relate the shooting of priests and others by mere youths armed with firearms and other weapons.

Rebel gunfire sent a Government plane crashing into the sea at Marbella, while they also inflicted damage on a warship engaged in bombardment at Ceuta.

NO CHANGE IN SITUATION
(“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special)

Paris, July 25. There has been no essential change in the situation up to Saturday afternoon in the news from Spain. General Mola's troops have not yet been successful in overcoming the Government forces at Sierra Guadarrama, about 30 miles from Madrid. Heavy fighting has been taking place during the whole of Saturday and the Government claims it they have repulsed the rebel army, enforcing its retreat, pursued by Government troops to Segovia where a new battle was expected to take place. There were many prisoners including a large number of officers.

BARCELONA SACKING

ALBACETE TAKEN

Madrid, July 25. The capture of Albacete, capital of the Spanish south-eastern province of that name, was announced by the Government on Saturday with a statement adding that regular communication had already been established between Madrid and that City.

A further announcement states that in recent fighting at Somocastro two insurgent airplanes which bombed the Government troops were shot down.

Referring to rumours circulating from the press that the Madrid ministries had been bombed from the air, it was pointed out that no ministries had been bombed and further that the water supply was completely normal.—

SAN SEBASTIAN DESERTED

London, July 25. It is reported that conditions in Barcelona are normal and that the banks are reopening, though only for the purpose of paying the workers.

It is claimed that churches and convents were not sacked but burned.

San Sebastian is almost deserted except for the People's Militia parading the streets.

The Popular Front Government is enlisting women into emergency forces.—

EFFECTIVE REBEL FIRE

Gibraltar, July 25. Spanish refugees have been sent back to Spain owing to overcrowding by the arrival of British refugees and also that fear of overcrowding may cause an epidemic.

A Government aeroplane crashed in the sea off Marbella after being hit by fire from rebel batteries at Algeciras.

While warships were bombarding Ceuta one warship's bow was damaged by shells from rebel guns.—
Reuter's Bulletin Service.

BIG BATTLE PENDING

London, July 26. There are no indications to-day of an early decision as to the fate of Madrid where it is officially claimed that, following repulse by loyalists, General Mola has withdrawn towards Segovia which is likely to be the scene of an important encounter as three loyalist columns are converging on that city.

The evacuation of foreign nationals continues in the meantime.

Forty one British athletes who went to Barcelona to participate in the Workers Olympiad and who arrived in Marseilles aboard a British destroyer declared they

A British refugee from Barcelona declares that practically every cafe and grocery store has been sacked and it is impossible to obtain food or drink.

He describes how a Spaniard took refuge in the bedroom of an Englishman at an hotel where a body of men broke in and killed the fugitive before the Englishman's eyes.

The informant says that hardly a church has survived the attacks of the mobs. Monks endeavouring to escape in plain-clothes were detected because they were wearing elastic-sided boots which are peculiar to them.

A case is also reported of a person who is a crack shot and has been passing from roof to roof, sniping at Communists of whom he has killed quite a number and has so far evaded capture.—

PARIS REPORT
According to the Paris paper “Intransigent”, passengers by the Dutch liner Tiberius which reached Port Vendee report that an American Consul and a British engineer were killed in the streets of Barcelona despite strict orders to protect foreigners.—

GUADARRAMA BLOODSHED

Paris, July 26. Two thousand rebels of General Mola's column are reported to have been killed in the battle of Guadarrama. Fighting is still in progress.—
Reuter.

SUMMARY OF MESSAGES

Madrid, July 25. The battle for Madrid, which is virtually between the proletariat versus the army, has at present gone in favour of the loyalists. About 5,000 militia from the loyal provinces of Murela and Valencia arrived in timely fashion to replace the past days' casualties, and by nightfall yesterday the rebel menace to the capital had been removed sufficiently to enable three columns composed of loyal troops, Civil Guards, shock police and militia to prepare a march against Saragossa.

WOMAN UNDER GUNFIRE

Seated With Orphan Children

RELATING FAIRY STORIES

Madrid, July 26. Caring for thirteen tubercular orphans under gunfire was the ordeal of a British woman, Miss Winifred Scanlon, who was found and brought in by car from Guadalupe by the British Embassy envoy.

Miss Scanlon returned under protest to Madrid, but insisted on returning to the orphanage. “After all the building which isn't mine was left in my charge, not to mention the children,” said Miss Scanlon to Reuter.

She was discovered in the cellar of the building, otherwise completely wrecked by artillery, seated in the middle of the bunch of orphans, relating fairy tales while the guns boomed around them.—

REFUGEES FROM MALAGA

Harrowing Story Of Conditions

CHEERS GIVEN FOR RESCUERS

Gibraltar, July 26. Three cheers for the Captain and Officers of the British destroyer Brazen were given by 148 British, American and other refugees from Malaga when they landed here.

The refugees, interviewed by Reuter, said: “What is happening there is savage and criminal. We were mostly locked for a week in complete darkness and through the shutters we saw a hundred priests, Fascists and others shot down, chiefly by children, between fourteen and seventeen years wearing red ties and shirts and carrying pistols, rifles, axes and truncheons.”

The principal streets in Malaga have been ravaged by fire and 250 buildings have been completely destroyed. Hundreds of people have been killed and over a thousand injured.—
Reuter.

Hendaye: The Fascists have formed a provisional Government headed by General Cabanellas. Subsequent developments depend on the fate of Madrid.

St. Jean de Luz: Passengers aboard the Verity brought the first news of Sir Henry Chilton, British Ambassador to Spain, for a week. The Ambassador is safe and intends to remain at San Sebastian.

Washington: The continued alarming despatches from San Sebastian have deepened the fears for the safety of the Ambassador, Mr. Bowers, who is marooned in a villa outside San Sebastian.—
Reuter.

BRITONS EVACUATED

London, July 25. Official reports received in London show that the four British destroyers are evacuating large numbers of Britons from the coasts on the Mediterranean coast. The situation in Madrid is still one of anxiety and about 100 British subjects, including children, are accommodated at the Embassy, where a stock of food has been laid in.

It is reported that Ceuta was bombarded early this morning by Spanish warships. The forts replied, but the result of the engagement is not known.—

STEALTHY CROSSING

Gibraltar, July 25. It is reported that two contingents of rebel troops crossed the Straits from Morocco last night under cover of the dark night and in boats showing no lights. It is understood that they are marching to Algeciras.

H.M.S. Repulse arrived to-day and landed the Gordon Highlanders, who will relieve the frontier guards. The local forces have been on duty continuously for a week, and the relief was most welcome.—

FRENCH ARMS FOR SPAIN

Parties In Fierce Debate

OPPOSING VIEWS

Paris, July 25. The question as to whether the French Government intend to send arms to Spain is being fiercely debated between the Left and Right wing parties.

The former argue that all legal governments should hold together in face of subversive movements, while the Right parties maintain that if France aided the Spanish Popular Front, the Fascist governments would consider it fair to aid the Spanish Right.

It has been hoped that some decision would be issued from today's meeting of the Cabinet as it was thought and understood that the question would be discussed. The communiqué, however, makes no mention of it and records that the Cabinet unanimously approved the work done by the Premier, M. Leon Blum, and the Foreign Minister, M. Delbos, at the London three-power conference.—

ITALIAN REPROACH

“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special
Rome, July 26. As already announced Italian warships have been sent to Spanish waters to be ready, if required, to offer refuge to Italian nationals.

This fact prompts “Tevere” in a leading article headed “Summons to Dance” to reproach the French government with the pursuit of a doctrinaire policy whose upshot might be the doctrine of war. For when French war materials cross the Spanish frontier, it means that the frontiers between the countries have ceased to exist and have been replaced by party frontiers. So that the fight is not one between states but between internationalism and fatherlands, between the dictatorship of the classes and the solidarity of the classes. When this is the issue, who will want to be out of the struggle? The door is thus opened to the initiative of all.—

DIPLOMATS RESIGN

Paris, July 25. The former Spanish Charge d'Affaires in Paris, Senor Castillo, publishes a declaration in the “Echo de Paris”, to the effect that he has loyally served the Spanish Government and the republic up to now, but that he is obliged to leave the Embassy because his conscience does not permit him to take any part in a transaction concerning supplies of arms which are destined for the slaughter of his own unhappy compatriots.

“Le Jour” states that the Spanish Consul at Marseilles has resigned, because he does not wish to have anything to do with the loading of arms on board ships in that port. According to “Le Jour” the Spanish Military Attaché at Paris, Senor Barroso and the Spanish Consul for the town of Bayonne have likewise tendered their resignations as a protest against the supply of arms to the Madrid Government.—
Transocean News Service.

REBEL HOPES

London, July 25. The actual situation in Spain is still obscure, and the few journalists able to send messages from Madrid have had their stories censored or dictated by the authorities. The United States Embassy in Madrid is the only one able to get in touch with Washington and the more reliable information comes from this source.

The rebels, broadcasting from Seville, state that Madrid will be occupied by their forces to-day. It is reported that the water supply in Madrid has been cut off by the rebels and a shortage of food is imminent, though the authorities proclaim that 50 lorries with supplies are on their way to Madrid from Valencia.—

GERMAN SHIPS READY

Evacuation From Spanish Ports

OTHERS REQUEST ASSISTANCE

“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special

Berlin, July 25. At the request of the German Foreign Office, the Ministry of Transport instructed all German shipping companies having their ships at present in or near Spanish ports, to hold them in readiness for the evacuation of German residents in Spain as far as possible and where necessary.

The shipping companies ordered the freighter Wessel, in Passajes harbour, and Cronos, in the Bay of Biscay, to place themselves at the disposal of the German Embassy at San Sebastian, while the Hermes has been instructed to stand by at Barcelona.

The Austrian Minister in Berlin asked the German Government to take the Austrian residents in Spain under its protection, while the Swiss Minister requested the German Government to allow their nationals in Barcelona and other Spanish ports to embark on German ships. The German Government at once gave the necessary instructions to its diplomatic consular representatives in Spain as well as the Navy and the shipping companies.—

ITALIAN EMPIRE IN ETHIOPIA

German Government Recognition

ROME LEASED

“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special

Rome, July 25. The Italian Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, received on Saturday the German Ambassador von Hassel, who announced that the Reich Government decided to convert the legation in Addis Ababa into a general consulate. Count Ciano thanked the Ambassador for the communication which had been received with satisfaction.—
Transocean News Service.

PROFOUND SATISFACTION

Rome, July 26. The conversion of the German legation in Addis Ababa into a consulate general has given profound satisfaction here where the step is interpreted as an unmistakable recognition of Italian sovereignty over Abyssinia and as such is described as “a sign of the realist and enlightening policy, traditional of the Third Reich.”

Another version declares that the step “corresponds to the simple logic of facts and constitutes a valuable element in the return to normality and sound common-sense in international relations, setting the European nations an example of how, without all kinds of diplomatic sophistry and useless controversy, it is possible to arrive at the recognition of the Abyssinian annexation.”

One paper remarks that “above all, the German step is a sign of the real cordiality prevailing in German-Italian relations. During London, July 26. His Majesty the King, accompanied by Prince Arthur of Connaught, embarked on the Admiralty yacht Enoch at 2 o'clock this morning for Calais en route to Vimy Ridge to unveil the greatest of all wartime shrines, the Canadian National War Memorial.

The Canadian pilgrimage thither has now lasted several weeks and the number has reached nearly 10,000. It is expected that 200,000 British and French people this afternoon will hear the unveiling speeches by King Edward and the President of France, M. Albert Lebrun.—
Reuter.

INSPIRING MONUMENT

London, July 24. Over 6,000 Canadians land at Havre and Antwerp to-day and travel to Vimy Ridge, scene of heroic sacrifice and victory, where the inspiring monument to the Canadian Expeditionary Force will be unveiled by the King on July 26. It commemorates the 60,000 Canadians who died in France and Belgium.

At Vimy these 6,000 will be joined by another 1,500 ex-soldiers, already in London.

His Majesty will leave Portsmouth to-morrow night aboard the Admiralty yacht, Enoch.

President Albert Lebrun, who welcomed the first of the Canadians to France, will attend the imposing ceremonies at the Vimy Ridge memorial.

His Majesty and the French President will speak and their words will be broadcast.—
Reuter's Bulletin Service.

REMARKABLE MEMORIAL

In majesty of conception and grandeur of design the memorial is one of the most important works of modern times, and in many respects the most remarkable of all the war memorials on the Western Front.

Its various phases of construction have entailed ten years' continuous labour, at a total cost, it is believed, of £250,000.

It will be recalled that Canadian forces took Vimy Ridge on April 12, 1917, and never afterwards lost it.

The Ridge is now part of Canada herself, for France, as an expression of gratitude, has given the land—about 200 acres—to Canada in perpetuity.

Around the base of the Ridge dug-outs have been retained exactly as they were when occupied by soldiers of the Dominion, and up the slopes of the hill trees have been planted, some of them brought from Canada as saplings.

The memorial, which is 125 feet high, is visible for many miles around in French Flanders, its situation dominating the Douai plain.

TOGETHER IN DEATH

It has been erected above the famous Grange Tunnel—a vast network of underground galleries excavated in the war, and used as the Abyssinian crisis Germany maintained an exemplary neutrality by not participating in sanctions, but in accordance with its own aptitude for colonial activity, took the side of civilisation against that of barbarism.—

Transocean News Service.

GERMAN DECISION

Rome, July 25. Germany has recognised the Italian Empire over Ethiopia. This interpretation is given by authoritative circles to a communique stating that Count Ciano, the Foreign Minister, received the German Ambassador, who communicated to him the decision of the German Government to suppress the German Legation at Addis Ababa and to replace it by a Consulate-General.

When this memorial is unveiled, the only unfinished one will be that of Australia at Villers-Bretonneux, near Amiens. To Australia this will be what the Menin Gate is to the Empire—the chief Commonwealth memorial on the Western Front.

ENGLAND FARES WELL IN SECOND TEST

Unfinished Century By Walter Hammond

GREAT SECOND-WICKET STAND

London, July 25.
At the close of play to-day in the Second Test match at Manchester, England held a lead of 30 runs with eight wickets in hand. All-India, batting first, scored 203 and England replied with 173 for 2.

With the first wicket-down for 12 runs, Hammond, with Fagg as his partner, gave a brilliant display, the partnership producing 134 runs. Hammond was 118 not out at the close, his score including sixteen boundaries.

A crowd of 5,000 was present in sunny weather when Maharajkumar of Vizianagram won the toss and elected to bat on a wicket which showed signs of drying.

There was no change in the teams. Hindlekar, who was troubled by blurring vision in the left eye being advised to rest for a fortnight and replaced by Meher Homji. Place, the Lancashire League player, was England's twelfth man, while Bannerjee filled a similar position on the visiting side.

DROPPED CATCHES

The match commenced with an epidemic of dropped catches. Gimblett missing Merchant when he had scored three runs and Verity missing Mustaq Ali, both off the bowling of Gover.

After his let off, Merchant blended caution with aggression, but with the total at 18 Mustaq Ali who had scored 13 was run out. Joined by Amar Singh, Merchant continued his cautious tactics and brought the total to 87 when he was taken at short slip by Hammond off Verity. Merchant had scored 33 in sixty eight minutes.

Major Nayadu joined Amar Singh, but the latter was taken by Duckworth in Worthington's first over with the addition of only six runs to the total, his own contribution being 33.

With three wickets down for 73, the scoring pace slowed down in the face of accurate bowling, and after carrying the total to 104 Major Nayadu was l.b.w. to Allen.

AFTER LUNCH

The weather was glorious after lunch and the crowd had increased to 8,000 when Wazir Ali and Ramaswami continued their innings. The visitors brightened things up until Verity took Ramaswami's leg stump, 161 for 5. Jehangir Khan was caught by Duckworth after the addition of three runs.

C. S. Nayadu and Wazir Ali carried the score to 181 when the former was beaten by Verity, 181 for 7. After scoring six runs the Maharajkumar was beaten by Robins, 188 for 8. Wazir Ali (42) the highest scorer for the side was caught by Worthington off Verity. He played a defensive game after his fine fifth wicket partnership which produced 61 runs. With Nissar caught by Hardstaff off Robins, the innings closed for 203.

ENGLAND BATS

Gimblett and Hammond opened the innings for England, but with the total at 12 Gimblett was beaten by a straight one from Nissar.

Joined by Fagg, Hammond brought off some brilliant, and powerful cover driving, scoring 52 runs in fifty minutes, including eight boundaries. The century went up on the score board after seventy minutes and Hammond's fourteenth boundary gave him the three-figure score in ninety minutes.

The second wicket partnership lasted 110 minutes until Fagg was l.b.w. to Mustaq Ali, his score being 39 and the total 146 for 2. Hammond carried on his rock-like defence in partnership with Worthington and brought the score to 173 for 2 when stumps were drawn. Up to this time Hammond, 118 not out, had been at the wicket for 120 minutes and hit sixteen boundaries.

SUGGESTED AIR LINE

FROM HAWAII TO AUSTRALIA

Honolulu.—(Via Clipper Air Mail).—Facing competition from at least two other nations, the United States may be expected to begin active preparation early next year for an air line to the Antipodes, in the opinion of W. T. Miller, superintendent of airways, bureau of air commerce.

Miller is here to supervise re-colonization of Howland, Baker, and Jarvis Islands by young Hawaiians who will collect the first detailed aerological data of the south Pacific.

He characterized this work as the "first step" toward an air line from Hawaii to Australia, which aeronautical observers believe will shortly be developed.

Some observers expect commercial companies to make preliminary overtures for southbound air mail contracts after presidential elections.

Great Britain and Japan are this country's leading rivals to open a new aeronautical pathway to Australia, now already connected with Europe by air.

British Imperial Airways reportedly is eyeing possibilities of a direct Canada-Australia route, via Hawaii. Japan now linked with Formosa, is believed anxious to extend the system through the Philippines to the Antipodes.

American interest in a south Pacific system led to preliminary work last year which Miller said gives this country a marked advantage in the race for the Pacific's last great insular markets.

Several possible routes were surveyed. Hawaiian students, living on Howland, Baker and Jarvis Islands for one year, also collected detailed surface weather data for the department of commerce.

They will return in July after two months' absence to establish permanent buildings and radio terminals on the tiny equatorial islands, Miller said.

He said the colonists will remain "indefinitely" on the three islands, leading to belief the occupancy is planned for between two and three years.

The students will take theodolite instruments and other equipment for recording upper air readings which will be radioed daily to naval stations at Pago Pago, American Samoa, and Pearl Harbour, here.

These readings will complement a report made recently by Lt. R. W. Stephens, then aerologist of the

OLYMPIC GAMES

Students Welcomed
In Berlin

(Hong Kong Daily Press' Special)

Berlin, July 24.

One thousand sport students representing 34 nations have taken up quarters in the Holiday Camp near Berlin which is being held in connection with the Olympic Games.

Among those which have travelled many thousand miles are representatives from China, Argentina, Brazil, Haiti and India.

Dr. Rust, German Minister for Education, expressed the expectation that the spirit of friendly understanding between the Nations engendered by the Olympic Games would continue long after they were over. The President of the Olympic Committee, Dr. Llewellyn welcomed the students in the name of the Committee and said he hoped all would take the best impressions away with them.—Transocean News Service.

PROGRESS OF TORCH

(Hong Kong Daily Press' Special)

Soloniki, July 24.

The Olympic Torch arrived here on time despite the heavy storm that had been raging for the last 24 hours. All shops and public places in the town were closed, the population thronging the streets. The Mayor kindled the fire on the Altar in front of the Town Hall, after which the runner went on towards the Hungarian frontier.—Transocean News Service.

LORD BEATTY'S LAST MESSAGE

2,500 Scouts To Hear Record

London, July 9.

On Sunday 2,500 London scout and guide commissioners, scoutmasters, and guide captains will hear the Empire Day message which the late Lord Beatty wrote as he lay dying, and which has been recorded by his son, the present Lord Beatty.

The occasion will be a special showing of the film "Rhodes of Africa" for scout and guide officers arranged with the approval of Lord Baden-Powell, the Chief Scout who, having seen the film, declared that it was one every-one connected with scout and guide movements ought to see. Lord Somers, the Deputy Chief Scout, has expressed his intention to be present. The audience will include Sir William Wayland, M.P., chairman of the Empire Day Movement, officers of the Boy Scouts Association, Imperial Headquarters Staff, and leaders of other national youth organizations.

"Rhodes of Africa" will be preceded by the late Lord Beatty's message. Another feature of the programme will be a short film showing Lord Baden-Powell, inspecting scouts in various parts of the world.

Pearl Harbour fleet air base, who expressed better flying conditions southward "on the whole" were comparable to those along Pan American Airways' present trans-Pacific route.

Miller declared such observations, preceding a south Pacific line, would eliminate the necessity for many of the pioneering flights Pan American made in building its trans-Pacific system.

On the July expedition, Miller's fourth in connection with this work, he will establish the first weather station at Pago Pago, destined to become a terminus for any south Pacific line.

Additionally the colonists will take tractors to Howland and Jarvis Islands to clear and level the coral-strewn terrain for airports preparing for the expected use of land planes in the future.

All three equatorial islands have been eliminated as possible sea-plane base points. Observers believe a southern line will go first to Kingman reef or Palmyra Island, approximately 1,000 miles southward of Hawaii, and thence to Pago Pago. From there two routes are possible to the Antipodes, either directly to Auckland, New Zealand, or to Sydney, Australia, via Suva.

The latter route, described as preferable, will not be possible for American companies without a change in the present Australian policy which prohibits landing of American aircraft on the island.

POSTPONED TENNIS GAMES

TO BE PLAYED OFF
THIS WEEK

The Chinese Recreation Club, champions of the "A" division of the local lawn tennis league, will play the Kowloon Cricket Club next Tuesday. This game was postponed from last Tuesday.

Coupled with the Club de Re-creio, the Kowloon Cricket Club are the strongest rivals of the Chinese, who have retained the title for the fifth consecutive season.

This afternoon, the K.C.C. "A" team will meet the Chinese in the mixed doubles League, which should provide an interesting event for the afternoon.

Having already defeated the U.S.R.C. on their own courts, the Chinese are favoured to retain the Dunlop Shield they won last year. The following are this week's fixtures:—

DAVIS CUP TENNIS

Challenge Round
Started

Wimbledon, July 25.

Great Britain, holders of the Davis Cup for the past three years, made a very satisfactory start in the Challenge Round against Australia this afternoon when H. W. "Bunny" Austin, No. 2 ranking player, swept Jack Crawford, ex-

Wimbledon champion, off the court with scores of 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1.

Fred Perry, Wimbledon champion for the past three years, gave Britain a 2-0 lead as the result of a 6-1, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2 win over Adrian Quist, the Australian champion.

Austin's backhand was under perfect control and his cleverly angled shots won many crucial points. His skillful lobs and drop shots caused Crawford great anxiety and caused him to tire quickly.

The Australian, who was undoubtedly handicapped by the windy and rainy weather, was weak in his ground shots, but his service was brilliant.

Apart from the fourth game, which he won on his service, Crawford won only three points in the whole of the fourth set. His monotonous meeting of returnable shots staggered the packed stadium.—Reuters.

FORCEFUL TENNIS

Fred Perry vanquished Adrian Quist with forceful and dashing tennis though his last many points through apparent carelessness. His service was deadly and he had four aces in the first set.

Quist was steady in the second set in which Perry was erratic. Both became disconcerted at being footfaulted and Perry thereafter applied pressure.

Rain, interrupted play several times.—Reuters.

NEW JAPANESE COTTON MILL IN TIENSIN

To Have 50,000 Spindles

ANOTHER CHINESE COTTON MILL FOR SALE

The erection of a new cotton mill in connection with Japanese plans for investment in the cotton industry in Tientsin is in active preparation on a site of land in the ex-Belgian Concession near the Texas oil tanks. The land has been acquired from Belgian interests, and Shintoist rites were held on the site on July 10.

The new cotton mill, to be known as the Yu Feng Cotton Weaving and Spinning Factory, is a new North China enterprise of the Toyo Cotton Weaving and Spinning Company, which has already had two cotton mills in Shanghai. The Tientsin factory is the first of the new cotton mills in connection with Japanese plans for investment in the cotton industry.

PLAN TO INCREASE
The local factory will have 50,000 spindles and it is planned to increase the numbers of spindles to 150,000 after a number of years. At the beginning it will employ about 5,000 workers, to be enlisted in Tientsin.

The Fu Chang Construction Company of Dairen has been awarded the contract for the erection of the factory, which will be completed in April next year. The factory will begin operation two months later. Meanwhile, the Japanese Kaneko interests have secured the Yu Yuan Cotton Mill, which, when re-opened, will probably have 70,000 spindles. The Yu Ta factory, which is under Japanese management, has increased its spindles from 20,000 to 40,000, and it is expected that in three years' time cotton mills under Japanese management in Tientsin will have a total of 300,000 spindles.

The Hua Hsin Cotton Mill, which was opened in Tientsin in 1918, is also winding up business pending its purchase by Chinese or Japanese interests. An extraordinary meeting of shareholders of the cotton mill held recently decided that in view of competition by cotton mills under Japanese management it was impossible to continue business under present conditions. The meeting decided to offer the cotton mill for sale and Messrs. Liu Chun-ching and Hsu Chi-sheng, two of the directors, were appointed to arrange for the sale of the factory, which has 27,000 spindles, employing 2,200 workers.

PHILIPPINE MINING NEWS

Good Progress Made By Marsman Mine

Operations at the properties under the management of Marsman and Company went ahead normally during the month of June, according to reports made in The Marsman Magazine, issued this week.

One of the important developments of the month was the arrival of the dredge Nanking at Coco Grove, where it has just been put into operation. The operation of this dredge is expected to increase the yardage to 40,000 a month at Coco Grove, with the other two dredges which have been digging in paracale Bay for several months.

Progress made during June by the Hankow and Rotterdam dredges was satisfactory. The Hankow is dredging its way into the vicinity of the light house. It was necessary to start digging to a depth of 50 feet into the gold bearing gravel layer. The removal of a thick layer of sticky clay caused considerable trouble and some loss of time.

The ordinary cutter consisting of six straight knives was not suitable for cutting through this clay, and a new spoon cutter was secured to replace it. After the new cutter was installed, the Hankow cut through the clay layer without difficulty. By pumping the sticky clay overboard through the pipeline to the spoil grounds, it has been found possible to discharge the gravel layer only over the tables, thus avoiding considerable trouble which this sticky material has been causing. The result of this innovation has been good so far.

On June 29, the bucket dredge "Nanking" with barge, arrived in Paracale and anchored in the bay about 2,000 feet off shore. Work was started at once on preparing the dredge for operations and it went into service July 14.

THE SHARE MARKET

Harriman's Weekly Review

Saturday, July 25.
Messrs. G. A. Harriman and Co., weekly share report and market review issued at noon to-day states—

General cheerfulness pervaded the share market throughout the period under review and the awakening interest, discernible last week in local descriptions, developed into a widespread demand. This general buying can be attributed principally to the recent political developments in Canton which events are expected to improve business in this colony. The first effects of the change of regime in the Kwangtung Capital have been reflected in the sharp drop in Hongkong exchange, this decline giving a further impetus to the improvement in local equity shares. Banks and Unions improved (as exchange fell) to $1585 and $540 buyers respectively. Utilities were in very good demand. Trams reaching $12, Electric 5 1/2, Telephone (old) 27 and $7 1/2 cum. Star Ferries were transacted at $89 and Lights (old) had active exchanges from 10/80 up to $11.75. China Lights (new) came in for enquiry up to $81 and Yammat Ferries are saleable at $19.60 or near. There is also some enquiry for Sandakan Lights, wharves were eagerly sought for and taken up to $81, closing buyers $1 better. Hongkong Docks rose to $15 and Providents (old) were heavily traded in from $1.05 to $1.60, closing $1.50 buyers. Cements have improved to a closing quotation of $9.25/9.35 after reported sales at $9.45 and Ropes, after long neglect came to business at $3.50, at which figure there are now sellers. Hotels were raised by keen bidders to $5.05. Realty are wanted round $4.30 and Hongkong Lands at 3 1/2. Dairy can be placed at $20 1/2 after sales at this figure. "Firm and active" best describes the Philippine mining section, in which a large turnover of shares has taken place. Antamoks had dealings at $3.15 and later at $4.92, with closing sales at $5. Baguio Gold eased to 36 cts. and came up again to 39 cts. Benguet Consolidated improved considerably to a closing rate of $20. Big Wedge shed a few
